

telling stories of community life

FACE UP

The Center for Documentary Studies at Duke University invites you to a

COMMUNITY ART FIESTA

In conjunction with Face Up: Telling Stories of Community Life

SATURDAY, MARCH 1 ★ 2–5 P.M.

REFRESHMENTS ★ MUSIC

Lakewood YMCA ★ 2119 Chapel Hill Road ★ Durham, NC

Face Up is a documentary arts project devoted to building and strengthening community in Southwest Central Durham through the collaborative creation of a series of large-scale, locally inspired public murals.

Artist Brett Cook, whose unique approach combines drawing, painting, and photography with ethnographic fieldwork and community organizing, is collaborating on the Durham project in January–May 2008.

More information: www.faceupproject.com

Questions: 919-660-3676 or 919-660-3664

Face Up is a project of the Center for Documentary Studies at Duke University in association with the Southwest Central Durham Quality of Life Project and the Duke University Office of Community Affairs.

Face Up is supported by the North Carolina Arts Council with funding from the state of North Carolina and the National Endowment for the Arts. Other major supporters are the Mary Duke Biddle Foundation; the Mary D.B.T. Semans Foundation; the Council for the Arts, Office of the Provost, Duke University; the Visual Studies Initiative, Duke University; the Department of Art, Art History, and Visual Studies, Duke University; the Office of the Senior Vice President for Public Affairs and Government Relations, Duke University; and the Tuscaloosa-Lakewood Neighborhood Association.